Agreeable to the proclamation of Mayor Carrington a large number of citizens filled the hall of the House of Delegates just night to determine what action the city of Richmond should take in regard to the approaching Centennial celebration at Yorktown.

The meeting was called to order by the Mayor, upon whose motion Hon. A. M. Kelley was called to the chair, and the requested to act as secretaries.

Mr. Keiley, upon taking the chair, returned thanks briefly for the honor conferred. This was a matter that concerned the fair fame of Virginia, and we should be willing to contribute our share and more to this cause. We are about to conclude a round of celebrations which was begun six years ago in Massachusetts. The whole it that everything is done to welcome the coming and speed the parting guests.

Major Robert Stiles was then introduced to the audience. The speaker said that not-withstanding other pressing duties he had not felt at liberty to decline the invitation of the Mayor to be present on this occasion. The people ought not to allow their private affairs to cause them to lose sight of this movement. It would be a grand opportunity for the development of the material resources of the State and to heat the dissentions that have distracted the land for s many years. People of all shades of political opinions would assemble there, and while they might be ashamed of each other as brothers, they could thank God that they were proud of their fathers. The speaker closed with an earnest appeal to the people to do their whole duty in this matter.

J.
